REAL CANADIAN NAVY PLANNED TO MEET NEEDS

to defend the American continent. It was the minister's first speech in the Commons since his election by acclamation last August in a by-election in Kingston City. The House gave him an ovation as he rose.

"We in Canada are determined to put forth on the sea, no less than on land and in the air, our best effort for defence of the British Commonwealth," he said.

"The dignity of Canada demands that we should have a navy worthy of our imperious role as one of the great trading nations of the world. It is a navy sufficient to meet the obligations which rest upon us in association with the United States for joint defence of this North American continent."

"I do not believe the Canadian people will be content indefinitely to permit the defence of the world's sole responsibility of guarding our trade routes or which, on the other hand, takes shelter behind the existence on this continent of a great and friendly power."

BUILD DESTROYERS

In addition to establishing a naval college for the training of fleet personnel, the minister said Canada proposed to go further.

"It is our hope that we shall be able to build destroyers and high cruisers in Canadian yards, the building of these craft requires a high degree of skill and they have never before been built in this country."

"In the early stages of this development we shall require assistance of skilled men from the admiralty dockyards or from private yards in Britain, and we have asked for that assistance."

He paid high tribute to the work of the navy and particularly of the losses suffered at sea. He closed with an expression of confidence in the ultimate triumph of British arms.

While he said a Canadian naval college would be re-established, he said young Canadians who had received naval training in England were in the very heart of the world's naval life. They were surrounded by the great traditions of the British navy and saw before them every day the proofs and symbols of that navy's might.

BRITISH LINK

"This link between Britain and Canada I hope will always continue," he said. "I hope that for all time Canadians may have recourse to British ports, British ships, British naval skill and British naval traditions."

"The minister, speaking of the government's plan to build up a navy 'that will not be unworthy of Canada,' offered said member to men trained in Canada, and that he get such men the naval college would be needed."

He held the hour the Canadian now is the responsibility of the deputy chief of air staff and all training activities are centralized under the air member for training.

Activities of Air Vice-Marshal E. N. Stedman, former air member for engineering and supply, now will be distributed between Group Capt. Tackaberry, air member for personnel; Air Vice-Marshal Marshall Stedman, whose duties are concentrated as air member for aeronautical engineering; and the air member under the new arrangement.

President Air Minister Power, Vice-president: J. S. Duncan, acting deputy minister for air.

In the last week for which he had official figures, being in the last month, 773 ships in convoy had been imported into England. This was about three-quarters of the total.

In the last week for which he had official figures, being in the last month, 773 ships in convoy had been imported into England. This was about three-quarters of the total.

It was a single point that the British navy and the Canadian navy were still performing valiant and efficient service in keeping open the world's shipping lanes, not only for Britain and her allies, but also for ships of neutral countries.

"The white flag is still a pledge of neutrality to all who pass on the seas upon their lawful occasions," said Mr. Macdonald.

HANSON'S CRITICISM

Referring to Conservative House Leader Hanson's criticism last week that Canada's contribution to the defence of Britain was "pitiful," Mr. Macdonald said if there was anything pitiful about the presence of 30,000 land soldiers in England ready to aid in the defence of the British Empire.

He said that there are many times 30,000 eager to join battle with the enemy. It is not the pitiful in the world of Canadians in the Royal Air Force or with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

"I think there is not I think on the contrary that there is every ground for pride in achievements of these two branches of the service."

Mr. Macdonald said the record of the Canadian navy was such that any person would agree that its work has not constituted a pitiful contribution.

Referring to the naval casualties, particularly those arising from the loss of the destroyers Fraser and Marguerite, and the mine sweeper Haida, he said that the loss of 14 officers and 243 men, the minister said, "it would be idle to say to the wives and mothers of these men that our contribution is pitiful or negligible in this struggle."

MORE SHIPS

Future plans of Canada's navy called for the addition of 100 ships and 10,000 men by the spring of 1942. Mr. Macdonald said. This would include a navy of 230 ships and 23,000 men.

This projected expansion of the navy was significant on two points. Canada was determined to put forth effort on sea no less complete than in the air and on the land.

The dignity of Canada demanded, and a navy worthy of the country's importance among the nations of the world, adequate to her needs as a great trading nation.

Canada could not hope to have a navy comparable with that of Great Britain but must be guided by our sense and our capacity.

An enlarged shipbuilding program was an essential part of Canada's naval plans. Canada had ready built some of the smaller vessels required by the Canadian and British navies and Mr. Macdonald paid tribute to the Canadian shipbuilders.

"NO CAUSE FOR SHAME"

In the Canadian naval effort, as in the whole war effort Mr. Macdonald saw "no reason to blush—no cause for shame."

Canada had been unprepared for war which would prove to his- torians that this country did not seek war.

"We took them up with great reluctance. We shall bear them with even greater firmness. We shall not lay them down until honor walks the earth again—until we and the rest of the democratic world are safe from the menace of Nazi attack and the threat of Nazi thralldom."

LONG AIR RECORD

Air Commodore Leckie, the new air member for training, was born in Scotland. He served with the Royal Naval Air Service and the Royal Air Force during the last war, and at the end of the war accepted a permanent commission in the Royal Air Force.

He returned to Canada on loan in 1918 and became identified with the Canadian air force. He was one of the first men to make a transatlantic flight across Canada.

He returned to England in 1922 and resumed service in the Royal Air Force, holding such important posts as commanding officer of the Royal Air Force, and command and director of training for air ministry.

He came back in Canada last winter on loan from the Royal Air Force to aid the British Commonwealth.

LABOR GROUPS FAR APART IN PEACE EFFORT

John Lewis In Attack On A.F.L. Leadership Op-

poses Unity

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 20.—(AP)—A unanimous session of the annual convention of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, shipped into a cheering frenzy during a bitter attack by John L. Lewis against William Green and the leadership of the American Federation of Labor, was in a fighting mood. No closer of the packed convention hall some- times drowning out his words.

Lewis blasted a proposal by Sidney Hillman's clothing workers' union for immediate consideration to ex- plore labor peace possibilities. No- thing at 25,000 delegates of Peace from all over the world.

"It would be a waste of time," he declared, "to raise the hopes of the millions of people in this country by making it appear that there is any possibility of peace."

When Lewis finished, the convention adopted a recommendation of the C.I.O. continue its present policy toward labor unity. This included the maintenance of a standing committee for any conference and con- sideration of the C.I.O. plan for organizing mass production workers into one union for each industry.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said tonight the Atlantic City speech Tuesday of President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations was an invitation to the right wing faction of the C.I.O. to get out of the union.

EDMONTON MAN IS FOUND GUILTY OF BREAK-IN

Kenneth Abbott Sentenced
Wednesday To Serve
Two Years

Kenneth Abbott, Edmonton, was sentenced by Mr. Justice W. C. Fox in supreme court Wednesday to serve two years in Prince Albert penitentiary on a charge of breaking and entering a dwelling in East Edmonton in the summer of 1928.

When placed on trial on the charge Abbott was found guilty and was remanded on a bond of $250 to be of good behavior for a one-year period. Recently he pleaded guilty in police court to a charge of consuming liquor in a public place and was fined $100 by the court to answer to a breach of his recognizance, the consuming of liquor in a public place charged against him.

Evidence placed before the court proved the police officer's proceedings on the unlawful consumption charge, and also that during the period he was bound over to be of good behavior Abbott had been consuming with persons known criminal record. He had been consuming during this period, Dr. M. H. Jones testified.

Following sentence Mr. Justice Fox said, "It is not in the accused's own interests that he be taken from home. It is on the ground of the public interest that he be taken from home on October 26, 1929, of breaking and entering a dwelling, that I pass sentence."

Abbott was previously sentenced in January 1928 on a charge of recognition charge, but the Alberta court of appeal referred the case back to the trial judge on a question of procedure.

2,250 RECRUITS GOING TO CAMP ON NOVEMBER 22

On Friday 2,250 recruits, mostly farmers and farm laborers of the 21-year-old group, will enter camp at Red Deer, Camrose and Grande Prairie for the second training period under the provisions of the National War Services Act.

They will be housed in the National War Service barracks at Red Deer, 1,000 at Camrose and 250 at Grande Prairie.

Some 50 recruits have been sent with the railway and bus companies for extra service to help with the increased work of the railways.

About 50 recruits of Edmonton will go to camp for this training period, J. P. McLean, K.C., divisional registrar, stated Wednesday.

PORTLAND SALE MAKES OPENING TO USE M'KAY

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—(CP)—Big Jack Portland, veteran Chicago Black Hawks defenseman, was purchased by Montreal Canadiens for a reported $150,000 Tuesday night in an effort to lead the correct fall of experience to the youthful National Hockey League club.

An official of Canadiens confirmed the announcement in Chicago by resident William Tobin of the Hawks that Portland was traded in a straight cash transaction.

Portland, 28, brings the number of Canadiens' defencemen to six—veterans Cliff Goulet and Doug Young, and rookies Ken Reardon, Alvin Sweeney and Tony Crook. There has been no indication who will be dropped to make way for him.

The 23-year-old defenseman, born in Collingwood, Ont., played his last NHL game with the Canadiens, breaking into professional ranks with them in the 1933-34 season. He went to Boston soon after being traded to Chicago last season.

Portland, who was acquired by Coach Dick Irvin and Business Manager Frank Patrick, is expected to replace him by Dave Mackay, Montreal's new captain.

Portland was in the American Professional Hockey League with the University of Alberta for four years.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Nobody is holding out promises of any kind, but if the controlled diet which has been the subject of an intensive ten-year research at Cornell University works out with comparable success for the dieting woman, the future will not only stay young longer, but a good percentage may live as long as the famous 120 years.

That optimistic outlook augurs well for the strength of a comprehensive report from Dr. C. M. McCay, head of the laboratory of animal nutrition at Cornell, who has experiments with white rats have been directed at establishing the relationship between diet and the aging process.

Before proceeding to these experiments, it is just as well to point out the fact that three factors are to be considered in the aging process. Whether your ancestors were a hardy lot, who lived to a hale old age, or whether you were born a child; and what you eat now. Not many of us can do anything about the first two, but we have a chance at the third factor. And from all available evidence, it does not appear to be beyond the realm of possibility that the three meals a day, with emphasis on protein, fats, and a reasonable cut on the calories, can extend one's prime.

Dr. McCay's studies will also elaborate on the daily calorie intake and the degree of body fatness as to the necessity for sufficient vitamins, minerals and protein. And again, every experiment was made on the basis of an adequate diet. That is, a diet adequate in the protein, vitamins, minerals and protein. The white rats used in the experiment have a life span many times more rapid than that of the human, but their diet and characteristics are very similar. The most significant conclusion is: A lean rat for a long life span.

In one group, the rats were allowed to eat as much as they pleased throughout their lifetime. At the same time, another group was fed a diet which was calculated up to a certain point in development.

There were other significant discoveries.

The incidence of tumor among the retarded rats was much less frequent. So was the incidence of liver and lung troubles. As Dr. McCay stated: "Since the life span can be greatly increased by this method, it follows that the disease of old age which terminate life must have been postponed."

Thus it appears evident that the method of calorie control, which Dr. McCay studies will also elaborate on the daily calorie intake and the degree of body fatness as to the necessity for sufficient vitamins, minerals and protein. And again, every experiment was made on the basis of an adequate diet. That is, a diet adequate in the protein, vitamins, minerals and protein.
